Arizona Supplants Manchukuo As Zone Of Japanese Trouble

Salt River Valley Ultimatum Occupies Major Space in Japan's Press To-day; Action of U.S. Farmers Creates "Difficult" Situation

Associated Press
Tokio, Aug. 22.—Arizona to-day supplanted Manchukuo as Japan's principal trouble zone, the afternoon newspapers devoting a great deal of space to the difficulty between United States and Japanese farmers in the Salt River Valley. The developments in Arizona eclipsed even the squabble with Russia over the China Eastern Railway as a topic of editorial comment.

The Emperor to-day heard an exhaustive account of the situation in America, especially relations of the United States and Japan on naval questions, from Prince Konoye, who returned recently from a United States tour. The Prince traveled to the Soviet's summer villa at Moiwa, north of Tokio, to make his report to the sovereign.

WIND DEFEATS LONE CANOEIST

Lambert Finishes Victoria-Vancouver Trip on Steamer

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Aug. 22.—The lack of time and a strong, northwest wind forced W. H. Lambert, Vancouver's school teacher-canoeist, to make the latter part of his Victoria to Vancouver canoe trip by steamer.

Leaving Victoria early Monday morning, he struggled against the wind and waves off the coast of Islands and utilized the tide whenever possible and in this way managed to reach Galiano Island before sunset.

He spent all day Tuesday waiting for the wind to subside. It did not go down and he was forced to complete his journey by steamer to attend a business meeting here.

The 25-year-old teacher set out for his trip by steamer as fast as he could. Mr. Lambert and he intends to return to Galiano Island, where he left his canoe and finish the voyage.

Sixty Write to Hon. George S. Pearson and Tell Why They Were Dismissed

Minister Appeals to Employers to Aid Raising Pay Standard

Some young men of twenty and twenty-one years of age, with four or five years experience in their jobs, have been receiving only $5 and $6 a week in B.C., and were discharged by their employers because of the new mercantile minimum wage calling for $12.50 a week. Hon. George S. Pearson, Minister of Labor, has discovered as a result of his appeal to those dismissed because of the order to write and tell him about it.

The minister has taken up the cudgels on behalf of more than sixty who communicated with him, and has made a personal appeal to their employers.

In letters written to each firm, most of which are large businesses, he has pointed out that they are big and take part in reconstruction of the wage system in the mercantile industry without hurting themselves. He has asked them to reconsider the dismissals.

"This is a thing which needs cooperative effort," he said. "We have no desire to prevent any firm from making money, and we want to see that everybody is working together to raise the wage standard back to $12.50 a week." (Turn to Page 2, Col. 4)

B.C. LIBRARIAN IS APPOINTED

Dr. Kaye Lamb Succeeds Late John Hosie in Provincial Post

Dr. Kaye Lamb, a native of New Westminster, to-day was chosen by the provincial government as successor to the late John Hosie, in the post of provincial librarian and archivist. Dr. Lamb will assume his duties on Sept. 1.

For a number of years Dr. Lamb has specialized in library work. He brings to the office a rare and unusual combination of talents and training as an archivist and librarian. — See Hon. G. M. Weir, Provincial Secretary, in announcing the appointment. "He is a graduate of the University of London, England. He was given an exceptionally high rating by the university authorities. He possesses the broad culture of the scholar as well as the knowledge and technical training of the successful librarian."

Dr. Lamb is a graduate of the University of British Columbia and also of the University of London, from which he holds a Ph.D. degree.

Capone Now In Alcatraz Prison

Associated Press
San Francisco, Aug. 22.—A heavily guarded convict train supposedly carrying Scarface Al Capone and other desperadoes, was run nearly to a stop to a bridge over the San Joaquin River on Alcatraz Island in the bay here to-day.

The government used all its cunning to bring the train to its destination to prevent any possible attempt by the prisoners to escape and it succeeded in getting the train to a standstill as the coaches neared the end of their journey from the Atlanta prison.

Five Score People on Beach in Foul Bay Watch Monster For Three Hours

Cadborosaurus has returned to Victoria waters. For nearly three hours yesterday afternoon he entertained about 100 people on the beach at the foot of Hollywood Crescent with his pranks in the kelp, and according to one of the witnesses there was no doubt that the monster seen was the one Victorians familiarly knew as "Caddy."

It would seem that the world-famous serpent has returned for a stay here. Last year it was October when he was first reported. It is believed he follows the salmon run.

"He is about 4,000 pounds," yesterday afternoon, said Joseph Burgess, 1921 Hollywood Crescent. "I was on the beach with my wife and two children, and watched him for about half an hour in the kelp. There were about 100 people on the beach and they all saw him. I was there for a couple of hours. He was about 100 yards out when I saw him, and although I did not get as close a view as some of the others, the one Victorians familiarly knew as "Caddy."

From what I saw I could tell it was a whale, like a whale, and some of the people who were closer earlier in the day said his face was square in appearance than that of a seal—more like a horse's. I am sure it wasn't a whale."

Forty Travelers From British Isles Among Group

With Countess Pia Layolo-Raggio, attractive blonde wife of an Italian nobleman of Milan, as one of the members, the twelfth annual C.P.R. Across-Canada tour has arrived in Victoria for a brief stay until to-morrow afternoon, when the Vancouver boat will be boarded for the return home.

The tour, consisting of forty people from the British Isles, the countess and a South African, left Liverpool on the liner Duchess of Bedford July 29 under the conductorship of R. H. Hobson of the C.P.R. office at Southampton.

Countess Layolo-Raggio, herself related to a family which has at various times been prominent in Italian history, is married to a man whose family is one of the oldest in his native country. After only a few hours' rest, she will visit friends before setting out to rejoin the tour at Montreal.

FLEW OVER PUGET SOUND EARLY TO-DAY

U.S. NAVY DIRIGIBLE MACON

Associated Press

Seattle, Aug. 22.—The United States navy dirigible Macon, her silvery sides gleaming in the rays of an August sun, visited the Pacific northwest to-day. She paid Seattle a twenty-five-minute call and then departed for her base at Sunnyvale, Cal. It was her maiden trip to the northwest. She was first seen over West Seattle at 7 a.m. and after circling about the city until almost 7:30 a.m., headed home. She was reported over Tacoma shortly after 8 a.m. It was the third time a dirigible has visited this area. The Shenandoah was here October 19, 1932, and the Akron May 24, 1932. Both ships crashed less than a year after their visit here.

The Macon, before reaching Seattle, passed over Bremerton and the Puget Sound navy yard. At a point above Vashon Island she let loose the five observation, scouting and fighting planes carried in her huge bulk and they hovered about the ship as she cruised over Seattle. The Dirigible also slid over the Sand Point naval air station on Lake Washington and the marine hospital on Beacon Hill, where windows were crowded with patients.

The Macon, sister of the ill-fated Akron, cost $2,450,000. She was commissioned June 23, 1933, at Akron, Ohio, and reached her Sunnyvale home October 15, 1933. Her skipper is Commander Herbert V. Wiley, one of the three Akron survivors. The dirigible is 785 feet long, only nine feet longer than the Graf Zeppelin, but being thirty-five feet greater in diameter has almost twice the gas capacity.

Hunt For "Finger Man" In Labatt Abduction Gang

Reports That Ontario Kidnapping Gang Would Soon Be Rounded Up Bring Denial From Police; Londoner Smuggler Said to Be Key Man Sought

London, Ont., Aug. 22.—Police activity in the Labatt kidnapping case concentrated to-day in the hunt for a Londoner believed to be the "finger man" in the abduction of the wealthy brewer last week. Meanwhile reports were current—but met by denials in official circles—that the entire gang would soon be rounded up.

A London man was reported sought as the key man in the pursuit of the kidnappers. His name was known to police and his recent activities were being closely checked according to one informant.

From the same source it was learned the so-called finger man was a small-time runner and smuggler, and that he was active in Windsor during the rum-running days of the prohibition era. He was reported to be farmers of the Salt River Valley that Japanese are "out of the valley" by Saturday "and stay out."

William Phillips, acting Secretary of State, telephoned Governor B. R. Mowat expressing the hope that the governor would use his "authority and influence in every way possible and appropriate to prevent any attempt at raising which would create difficulties in the relations between the United States and Japan and the nationals of each in the territory of the other."

Then Phillips telephoned Arthur T. Laprade, Attorney-General, who gave the telephone to a representative of the Far East Relations Division of the State Department, who asked for details of the situation. Although Laprade declined to divulge details of the conversation, it was understood the State Department representative had said that any serious trouble between white farmers and Japanese here might precipitate difficulties for Americans residing in Manchuria.

Mr. Laprade later telephoned the State Department that he had conferred with the Marion County Attorney and sheriff and had been assured there would be no physical violence against the Japanese.

The farmers' ultimatum to the Japanese was delivered following a meeting attended by more than 500 white farmers in the Salt River Valley. If it is not obeyed, the farmers declared, steps will be taken to enforce it.

White farmers of the valley charge that many Japanese are cultivating land in violation of the State Alien Land Law which forbids Japanese not natives of the United States owning or leasing agricultural land.

Acting Secretary of State Phillips' message to Governor Mowat said he had been informed that a "league of farmers" in the valley had demanded that Japanese be removed and their lands confiscated, and that these were used to carry out the resolution, violence might result.

peal. This theory was given substance by the finding of empty money bags—especially the very bags in which the $67,000 was being transported—on the car and grill at Sheepshead Bay, Brooklyn.

The robbery is without precedent either in the size of the cash loot or in the nature of the theft itself. Never before has an armored truck of the United States Trucking Corporation been robbed. The trucks themselves have never been spoken of as "holdup proof."

have been a leader in this smuggling activity.

It was unofficially conjectured that through his residence in London he knew the position of John Labatt well enough to supply information to the men who had kidnapped him as he drove between Barnsley and London.

It was further presumed this man was the one, or one of the men, who brought Mr. Labatt to London shortly after the brewer disappeared.

Although rumors were current that the kidnap gang were known, that the hideaway of the kidnappers was kept secret, the brewer's whereabouts and that arrests had actually been made, official denial was given them all.

There have been no developments up to now," said Ontario provincial police chief, Rev. Canon Dent, of the thirty-third year of his service.

W. J. North, South African busi- ness man and world-traveler, is much impressed with the dining-car service he has received on his present trip.

Many members of the party expressed surprise at the comfortable conditions in private houses they visited in Winnipeg.

INDIAN POW-WOW

Leaving Liverpool late in July, the tour arrived in Quebec, went on to Montreal, and later had its first experience of a Canadian bungalow camp at Nipigon Bay, where the Indians stage a pow-wow for the benefit of the tourists. The section between Quebec and Baie-Sainte-Claire was done by automobile, and four nights were spent at Banff. The famous Lariat Trail was taken to Lake Louise.

On the way home the party will travel by the British Columbia front and mining district, Oregon and the eastern parts of the Great Lakes and the eastern centre, which was seen coming out. The liner Duchess of Bedford will again be booked September 7 for the ocean trip home.

An interesting feature of the tour is the length of time the tour will be spent on the train.

The complete personnel of the party follows: Mrs. A. F. Alinsworth and Miss E. Ainsworth, T. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Carpenter, Mr. J. Crossman, Mr. C. G. Cuthbertson, Mrs. G. D. Dalessandro, Very Rev. Canon Dent, T. C. Eamer, Mrs. A. Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Farrington, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hartley, Mr. and Mrs. R. Hartley, Mr. and Mrs. T. Hales, Mr. and Mrs. G. Monk, W. J. ## FIND EVIDENCE WAS MYTHICAL

Prairie Man After Reward as Informer Is Jailed

Canadian Press
Saskatoon, Aug. 21.—Romantic amanuensis to become a police investigator did, incidentally, collect a reward for him, landed twenty-five-year-old John Demosoff, Aberdeen, in Prince Albert jail for six months. He faced guilty before Provincial Magistrate E. M. Mighorn at Langham

Monday for fabricating evidence on which Royal Canadian Mounted Police arrested Nick Kinakin, also of Aberdeen, on an attempted arson charge.

Demosoff admitted early on a "fire was started on the steps of the Manitoba School, ten miles west of Langham. He later had given the police information on which they had acted and arrested Kinakin.

The young man maintained he had not intended to burn the school. He had employed the machine, consisting of a box filled with packing and fitted with matches, sandpaper and gunpowder. The fire was to start and, would release the gasoline which in turn would strike the matches and ignite the packing. The box was placed on coal oil-soaked steps. Police agreed failure of the machine to start the fire appeared to confirm Demosoff's statement.

Public Not To See Relief Probe Report

Saanich Council Votes to Drop Debate When Councillor E. C. Warren, Who Sought Tabling of Statement, Refuses Comment
After Study

Opening of the provincial government report of the inquiry into the 1933 administration of Saanich relief is now regarded as a dead issue. After two weeks' opportunity to carefully consider the government document, which he was instrumental in having tabled in accordance with his election promise, Councillor Edward C. Warren, Ward Two, yesterday evening refused to offer any comment on the report.

His motion to have the twenty-four page statement made public through the Minister of Labor and let the public decide the issue for itself was lost by a single vote with one councillor absent from the chamber along with its defeated motion on which Councillor Warren was conceded as having won his election.

Councillor W. Richard Woods, Ward Four, refused to cast his vote on the resolution to petition the government to release the report on the grounds he would not take action until Councillor Warren was prepared to state whether or not the report was satisfactory in his mind after having the opportunity to thoroughly read it.

HAGAN SATISFIED
Councillor L. C. Hagan, Ward Six, who, at the time Councillor Warren asked for the tabling of the report, described the measure as being fully satisfied with the report, said yesterday he was still satisfied with the original report.

"I just want the public to get this report," said Councillor Warren.

Councillor Warren satisfied with this report or is this the minimum standard of satisfaction?" he asked.

"It is," said Councillor Hagan.

After reiterating the fact that he would not release such a report in which there was considerable information as names of persons on relief and the amount they received was contained, the Reeve asserted he thought there were no more than 2 per cent of the ratepayers were interested in the report anyhow.

CLEARER SUSPICION

"I wasn't here at the 1933 meeting at which this report was finally dealt with," said Councillor Hagan. "But I have been here since then and have prepared the following statement which I would like to read to you:

"I am pleased to have had a copy of the report to study and I feel sure that it clears up any lingering suspicion that something was not just as it should be. Naturally the government investigation had been done to some fault or they would feel they were doing in the eyes of municipal officials... It is well this investigation was carried out to clear up any remaining doubts and ill feelings which we have against the government, a storm, false or otherwise. However, we have too much clashing of government officials, red tape and bureaucracy trying to work with democracy, which cannot be done."

Councillor Hagan could see nothing wrong with the report. He felt it would be wrong to publish the names it contained, although he was not one to keep things hidden from the public.

The meeting was generally viewed with dissatisfaction by members of the council and a handful of ratepayers.

When the meeting was decided open Councillor Warren rose and addressed the council. He had asked for the tabling of the report according to the promise he had made on the election platform to have Saanich relief matters cleared up and on reading the report had discovered it was not open to the public.

WANTS MINISTER'S RELEASE

"I more than we petition Mr. Pearson, the Minister of Labor, to release to the public the report of the investigation into Saanich relief last year," he moved on concluding.

"You mean to say that this is closed business as far as the government is concerned and you want it opened?" asked Councillor Hagan.

"That is what I understand from the last meeting," was the reply.

"In other words, you want the whole report published?" asked Councillor G. S. Eden, Ward Seven.

PERSONAL INFORMATION

As an instance of the matter which the report contained, Reeve Crouch said:

"Here's a case here where it refers to a man living with his common law wife. Are you going to let that man's personal information be published?"

"I am sure if I had a report tabled, after studying it for two weeks, I would know how I felt about it," commented Councillor Eden.

"Then I second the motion," said Councillor Eden.

"Report as I see it, is closed business with the government and the council. These relief investigations arise out of relief cases and I don't think personal matters fall in consideration during these investigations should be made public," asserted Councillor Fred Borden, Ward One.

"Have you found anything illegal in the report?" asked Councillor Woods.

"I will not commit myself until this report is released," answered Councillor Warren.

"As far as I am concerned the names in this report will not be published," said Councillor Eden.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE IS THE theme of the latest economic review issued by the Bank of Nova Scotia which is convinced that a system of this kind for Canada may not be far distant. The review points out that from many points of view such a change involves many momentous considerations. It will be welcomed by many because it obviously represents a more orderly method of dealing with involuntary destitution than the haphazard system of relief that we have created since 1929. It will be regarded with misgiving by some, with equally good reason; for, as has been seen in the case of Britain since the war, it may well involve financial commitments on the part of government and industry, which carry with them serious risks.

The review suggests two objectives which should govern a scheme of unemployment insurance. The first is that it should be adequate to the country's needs. The second should be to keep the cost within the country's means. While it is to be hoped that these two objectives will be compatible with one another, their reconciliation is bound to prove difficult, since the greater the cost of providing adequately for the country's unemployed, the greater must be the burden that government and industry must assume. Obviously, too, the review says, the greater the element of uncertainty in the risks of unemployment against which we must provide, the greater also will be the element of uncertainty, when the cost to the country of providing unemployment insurance comes to be considered. The first question that arises, therefore, is: Against how much unemployment must we make provision in advance in order to deal fully with the problem?

The article deals with the question at length, and while its views in some aspects are debatable, they are significant in indicating the opinion of a leading financial institution that the question of unemployment must be grappled with on a permanent and enlightened basis.

NIAGARA vexed

NOTWITHSTANDING THE OPINION of some authorities that Niagara Falls, one of the wonders of the world and this continent's greatest spectacle, will likely last for 20,000 years, the recent erosion of rock on the Canadian side involving a recession of one hundred feet deep, commands world-wide interest. Three years ago a similar collapse occurred on the United States side and there was some discussion of the measure required to preserve the contour of the falls. The break of the lip at the Horseshoe Falls the other day must force upon authorities of both countries the necessity of promptly devising some means of preventing any further subsidence.

It is hard for laymen to accept the dictum of engineering experts that the falls will last for thousands of years when hundreds of tons of rock suddenly thunder into the gorge 160 feet below. Indeed, man's limitations are too immediate to enable him to predict just what is likely to happen to any natural phenomena from time to time. Apparently nobody in authority expected that the Horseshoe Falls would bite its lip—as one commentator picturesquely describes it—even though three years ago the United States Falls gnawed a big chunk out of its lip. The process may be catching. Niagara may develop a liking for the diet and it would seem to be imperative, therefore, that steps should be taken to protect its lip from the ravages of its teeth. This would appear to be a job which will challenge the ingenuity of the engineering surgeons and dentists of both countries.

TRIMMING ONTARIO'S SALES

EVERY TIME I LESSEN THE TAX burden of the people of Ontario I feel I have accomplished something." So said Premier Hepburn the other day. Critics who a few weeks ago spoke with a wink or a nod of the "new broom in Queen's Park," and predicted only short-lived activity, are being proved wrong.

The drive for economy, says The Toronto Star, goes on steadily. Mr. Hepburn is confident that his government can implement the pre-election pledge to reduce administration costs by fifty per cent. He has spoken, as well, of the serious study that is being given to plans for readjustments in the manner of handling provincial finances which cut down the heavy load of interest charges. Our contemporary then goes on:

"Closely related to this is the endeavor that is to be made to modernize the methods of provincial accounting. Certainly the taxpayers will welcome the setting up of a businesslike system which will provide a clear view of the actual position as regards income and outgo. Attention is being turned, too, to the forgotten matter of proper sinking funds and the general question of debt redemption."

"The energy with which things are being done is virtually every department at Queen's Park is disconcerting to political foes who have been insisting so vehemently that it was a cabinet of tyros that was taking office. Such critics have failed to note that for the most part the new ministers are men of experience and matured judgment; and they have not taken sufficient account of Mr. Hepburn's own federal background."

"The Premier has emphasized that it is the purpose, first of all, to overhaul the machinery of government. This entails a vigorous cutting away of non-essentials in the public service. In some instances there was need to make an end to unnecessary functions of government; and in others the equipment had become so antiquated that it could not longer be tolerated. It is not easy to deal with the matter of changes in personnel; yet the pre-election pledges imposed a clear obligation to cut out the superfluous on the payroll."

THE "ASHES" GO DOWN

THE MYTHICAL "ASHES" WILL BE taken back to Australia. The famed cricketers from "down under" put their opponents to sleep with a two-innings score of 1,028 against 466.

This was a margin of 562 runs. The Australians ran up in their first innings 701 to a perfect wicket. Their captain won the toss and, very wisely, sent his team to bat first.

Run-getting obviously was simple for the Australians, particularly for Bradman and Ponsford who scored, between them, more than the required runs.

These matches were followed with intense interest by the whole cricketing world, in whose records they now have become a classic. They have furnished the usual budget of comment and criticism in the Old Country and Australian press, with old-timers comparing the meteoric Bradman and Ponsford with the great batters of the past, such as Grace, Jessop and Ranjitsingh.

Such comparisons are never quite convincing in any game, whether it be cricket, tennis, baseball, hockey or in the ring, but they are always interesting and inspiring to the devotees. For the time being, Australia has the "ashes," but it may be taken for granted that Britain's cricketers will see that she does not keep them long.

PICTURESQUE THREE RIVERS

WHEN ISAAC WELD, IRISH TRAVELER, came to Canada in 1796, he found Three Rivers, in the province of Quebec, a town of "two hundred and fifty or three hundred houses, regarded in point of population as the third city of Canada and in the first rank as regards age." At that time Three Rivers was already over a century and a half old. The eastern city this year celebrates its three hundredth anniversary.

An unusual history of the Quebec city is contained in a special number of Le Nouvelliste, French Canadian weekly, dedicated to the tercentenary of the place. Starting with the passing of Jacques Cartier before the site of the city in September, 1535, it continues through the erection of a fort there by Lavallois in 1634, and the many vicissitudes which marked the history of the place during the next century, up to the present time.

The edition of Le Nouvelliste also includes a history of journalism in old Quebec, a collection of the strange folk tales of the place, and resumes of the advance of education and living conditions.

An item of special interest for old-timers is a reproduction of the town's first telephone directory, including 106 names, as against more than 5,000 at the present time.

Other items in the special edition include histories of the main industrial enterprises of the district, notably the Shawinigan Water and Power Company.

MINISTER OF WATERWAYS

SOMETHING SHOULD BE DONE ABOUT Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture in the Ontario government, for he permitted his feelings so to run away with his better judgment that while making a speech at Guelph he tipped a pitcher of water right into the lap of the editor of one of the local papers.

Being a good mixer, of course, he was profuse in his apologies. That was all right. Everything went on as if nothing untoward had happened. But when, still a prey to gesticulation, he swept a glass of water over the editor's back, that was the limit. No self-respecting newspaperman could stand the double douch from a politician.

Tolerance, however, came to the editor's aid. He said: "Ah, Mr. Marshall should be Minister of Waterways." Premier Hepburn no doubt will take this matter under advisement.

Machine guns and sub-machine guns figured prominently in the big field meet of a gang of bandits in Brooklyn yesterday which $427,000 were stolen. It is going to be a hard job for the United States to put an end to this kind of banditry as long as private individuals are permitted to acquire armament of this kind.

The results of the by-elections in South Wellington and North Grey show that the Hepburn government has lost none of the electorate's confidence since the general election. Of course, the change of administration in that province is of recent date, but evidently as far as those two constituencies are concerned, the voters have not changed their minds. Considering the reforms instituted by the new government and the energy it is showing in surmounting the obstacles left by the old one, it is not improbable that so far it is even more popular than it was when it was established in office. Premier Hepburn already has effected extraordinary economic incidental piling up enough political dead-wood bequeathed to him by his opponents to make a spectacular bonfire.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY*ABOUT FACE ON TARIFFS

The Boston Christian Science Monitor

The signing of the Reciprocal Tariff Act by President Roosevelt consummates a radical change in American commercial policy. . . . Basically the act expresses a new era in American commercial relations. It reflects America's changed position as a creditor nation seeking desperately to find some way to accept payments—payments which must be made in goods—on its investments abroad. The old theory of the tariff was to exclude foreign goods and protect infant industries; the new theory is to admit foreign goods—wherever possible without destructive competition—and to protect producers of exports which can only be paid for in foreign goods.

A THOUGHT

Matthews have ye added nothing to my master; and ye shall receive, that your day may be full.—St. John xvi. 24.

It is hard to ask; it is sweet to give.—Mme. de Girardin.

Loose Ends

A great expedition is prepared—to dash into the unknown—but there are grave disputes concerning sardines, prunes and Vitamins A and C and we start with deep misgivings.

By H. B. W.

OUR DASH

WHILE YOU HAVE gone about your business as usual, and the newspapers have ignored the entire enterprise, a mighty expedition has been launched in Victoria to make a last dash into the unknown, into the distant prunes and have a little sleep in between periods of dashing. Archie made a rather fine oration to prove that people who must have camp cots really had no right to go camping at all. He said it was an insult to mother nature and a temptation to Providence to sleep on a camp cot. I think he felt that a true adventure wouldn't sleep at all during a last dash. He said so far as he was concerned if you gave him a pound of prunes he could lie down and sleep comfortably on a rock.

Percy said he had never found the bosom of mother earth very welcoming and Ernest said he would rather give up his share of the prunes and have a little sleep in between periods of dashing. Archie made a rather fine oration to prove that people who must have camp cots really had no right to go camping at all. He said it was an insult to mother nature and a temptation to Providence to sleep on a camp cot. I think he felt that a true adventure wouldn't sleep at all during a last dash. He said so far as he was concerned if you gave him a pound of prunes he could lie down and sleep comfortably on a rock.

DISASTER

WE'LL FINALLY we decided to allow each man fifty pounds all inclusive, and we assembled our entire gear in the basement for weighing. There were four of us and the total weight came to 517 pounds. We looked at each other in blank despair and for a moment it seemed as if we wouldn't dash at all. Archie nibbled a prune solemnly. Percy sat down on the sardines in his back pocket. Ernest looked at his camp cots and sighed.

But we are men of stout hearts. We resolved to dash if we had to do it all unless some sardines could dash with him. Finally, after he had produced the Encyclopedia Britannica (new editions) to prove that there are more vitamins A in salmon than in salmon or sardines, we allowed him to take just one can, provided he carried it in his own hip pocket. He seemed to think that vitamins A were essential to a dash into the unknown.

Archie said he would prefer some prunes himself, and had always dashed successfully so far without vitamins A or sardines or salmon or caviar.

Percy warned us that if it came to a last stand against starvation he would eat his sardines all alone and leave us to die on the trail. He said he could march 100 miles on a can of sardines. Meanwhile he would keep them in his back pocket and sit on them to prevent robbery.

On the welcoming bosom of mother earth. Ernest groaned.

"We should have more beans." I said.

But I fooled them. I shoved a can in each pocket against emergencies. Just before we started out I observed two suspicious bulges at the bottom of Percy's pants and, tapping them, heard a metallic click—he'd taken his sardines after all. Archie's pockets bulged with prunes. Ernest, unable to smuggle his camp cot in, was discovered in the act of inserting a pillow into the blanket roll. We looked at one another like traitors caught in the act but, come what may, we are going to dash.

We looked up the Encyclopedia Britannica again but it didn't seem to know anything about the nutritive value of prunes. Percy said prunes were a luxury which no desperate expedition like ours could afford. Ernest said he had lived all his life without prunes and, with heaven's help, would die without them. Archie said that is exactly what he would do if he didn't take some.

We looked up the Encyclopedia Britannica again but it didn't seem to know anything about the nutritive value of prunes. Archie asserted that one prune was equal to a pound of beefsteak, but cut that down to half a pound under fire from us.

No said he knew a man who had crossed the Rocky Mountains on prunes—with a little bacon, beans, rice and flour. He said there was nothing more comforting than to come into camp late at night, wet, exhausted and cold, and find a nice can of cold prunes waiting for you. He argued for ten pounds of prunes, but we cut him down to five.

The gravest argument of all, I regret to say, turned on the question of camp cots. On this our expedition broke into two parties, divided, as it were, by a sacred question of principle. Percy and Ernest were all for taking folding camp cots, but Archie and I stood out against it with all our might. We said that any expedition which couldn't sleep on the welcoming bosom of mother earth could hardly expect to vary far into the unknown.

Percy said he had never found the bosom of mother earth very welcoming and Ernest said he would rather give up his share of the prunes and have a little sleep in between periods of dashing. Archie made a rather fine oration to prove that people who must have camp cots really had no right to go camping at all. He said it was an insult to mother nature and a temptation to Providence to sleep on a camp cot. I think he felt that a true adventure wouldn't sleep at all during a last dash. He said so far as he was concerned if you gave him a pound of prunes he could lie down and sleep comfortably on a rock.

CARAVAN HERE ON LONG JAUNT

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Corliss and Family From Los Angeles Have Moving Home

Considerable interest has been aroused in the city in the last few days by the appearance of a trailer caravan, brought to Victoria by Mr. and Mrs. Earl G. Corliss of Los Angeles, who are holidaying here with their aunt, Mrs. Shirley Simpson, 614 Monterey Avenue.

The caravan is one of the best equipped which has visited Victoria, providing living accommodation for Mr. and Mrs. Corliss and their two young sons.

On a leisurely trip up the Coast they stopped at many places to make camp for the evening and lived a normal life in their home-built traveling bungalow.

Complete with a frigidaire, stove, bed and other household equipment, the caravan offers all home comforts. It is being towed by a towing behind Mr. Corliss's sedan car.

After a stay of several days here, Mr. and Mrs. Corliss will leave on Friday for their permanent home in Los Angeles.

BULLETS WHINE LAST "GET ALONG, GET ALONG" TO "DOGIES"

Here are three "dogies" that never more will hear the mournful refrain of the cowboy, two dead by bullets and a third about to meet a like fate, among the thousands that have been slaughtered on western plains to relieve them of the agonies of hunger and thirst. ### CHILD LEARNS TO WAIT FOR ANGRY COMMAND

The moment a man raises his voice in an argument she bows low. The instant another raises her voice to gain obedience, she loses authority.

The tightened vocal chords usually indicate anger or panic, and neither impresses the listener with real power. A child may sense the coming storm, perhaps, and stop their misbehaviour because he knows force will not be far behind. But this one does once. Even when a mother wants submission, she will have to shout and perhaps add a few gestures as well. The child learns to wait for it.

Children are like wild creatures of the wood. They do not keep ears consciously open, but the instinct for catching sounds is always there. If they know there is only one tone they have to obey, they wait for that tone.

UNAWARE OF HABIT

Whatever the "obedience" tone is, the untrained child will baffle until he learns the one that reaches under his guard. And not until he hears it will he move.

It is the habit of all habits of which mother and child usually are unconscious.

Mother never expects to be obeyed if she speaks in an ordinary voice, so she speaks unnaturally when she wants something done immediately.

There is another interesting truth about the raised or hysterical voice.

Sothes Eyes After Motoring

The extremely delicate task of saving the sight of a king may fall to Dr. May Turner Black, of San Diego, Calif., famous King Edward Physician. Since he has come a place to the noted surgeon to operate on his failing eyes at a date soon to be set. Dr. Black is the only woman ever to serve as intern in the New York eye and ear infirmary.

Miss Florence Stevens of Stamford is a former Victoria girl on a vacation visit here. She is accompanied by her mother and by her brother, Mr. Harold Stevens, editor of The Palo Alto Times. They have been on a motor trip through the national parks of the western states, up to Glacier Park and Canada on the Canadian side. They will go inland from here before going south.

Mr. and Mrs. E. I. Rutherford of Port Renfrew, a former Victoria girl, are celebrating their tenth wedding anniversary at their home in the village. They have been awarded a valuable Rockefeller Foundation fellowship, leaves in September for New York, where she will attend Columbia University for a year. The fellowship, which is awarded a nurse for outstanding professional ability, provides tuition, living and traveling expenses.

LINE PLAYING WITH SHIP

A man who cracks a blacksnake whip around tree trunks often enough will feel the spur of cruelty in his veins. If a dog came along he would likely curl it about his body because he would have dreamed of such a thing before he began his idle sport. It may even account for the golf temper—self out.

Children can learn that a natural voice means business. Many a mother who has lost in the futility of loud speaking and revving suddenly to a low tone, find it magic.

DRAWL IS INFFECTIVE

Of course, a drawl, a listless—I don't expect-you-to-listen tone is useless. The hopeless voice without conviction is no better than the shout.

Primacy is not a question of tone primarily. It is decidedly a matter of habit. The child who grows up to the "habit" of obeying will never need to be shouted at. The strident voice in an admission that there is no habit of obedience.

Children are like wild creatures of the wood. They do not keep ears consciously open, but the instinct for catching sounds is always there. If they know there is only one tone they have to obey, they wait for that tone.

UNAWARE OF HABIT

Whatever the "obedience" tone is, the untrained child will baffle until he learns the one that reaches under his guard. And not until he hears it will he move.

Mother never expects to be obeyed if she speaks in an ordinary voice, so she speaks unnaturally when she wants something done immediately.

There is another interesting truth about the raised or hysterical voice.

The many Victoria admirers of Mr. Barry Jones, the English actor, who made many friends on his several visits to the city, will be interested to learn that he is shortly appearing in London with Gertrude Lawrence and Douglas Fairbanks Jr. in Clement Dane's new play, "Her Lie Truth." He has also been engaged for a tour of Australia and South Africa. Return to Victoria friends, Mr. Jones further states that Mr. Colbourne is engaged in writing another book, his last having been translated into five languages.

A number of quaint early Victorian gowns will be worn by members of the Columbia W.A. to add interest to their garden party to be held to-morrow afternoon at "Bishop's Clove." This party, the first of its kind to be held here, will be of great attraction and interest, not only to local residents, but also to visitors in the city, to whom a cordial invitation has been extended. The garden of Bishop's Clove will form an ideal setting for such a party, and many attractions and other features have been planned. Visitors are requested to enter the gardens by the gate at the corner of Burdette and Vancouver Street, and not through the Memorial Hall.

Mrs. Margaret Sheret was the guest of honor when Miss Betty Barty entertained at a bridge party and kitchen shower at her home on Pemberton Road yesterday evening. Williamson, Mrs. Keith Dorman, and Misses Margaret Sheret, Helen Constance (Helen) Dorman, Dorothy Gardner, Audrey Spiley, Phyllis Fenwick, Eileen Tomlin, Dorothy Nelson, Gwenodoline Watkins, Evelyn Wood, Kathleen Sheet and Ann Beatty.

GIRL RID TOWN OF BANDITS

Kiwanis' President Broadcasts Speech

Indian Authorities Recognized Bravery That Ensured Gang's Capture

Canadian Press
Simla, India, Aug. 22.—A brave Indian, Marnam Kaur, was given recognition for her gallantry recently by the Governor of the Punjab because of her capture of two bandits who had stolen a gift of land and a cash prize of $500, granted by the government in recognition of her bravery against bandits.

Women of the city gave her a golden chain.

This seventeen-year-old girl rid her village in the Moga Thesi. Punjabi. Four days ago, armed bandits entered the village, one of whom had offered a large reward, raided a village in the Moga Thesi and asked the girl to reveal to them the place where other young women of the village hid their jewelry.

Leaving the girl in charge of one of them, the others went up the roof of a house to study her position. Meantime, seeing Marnam Kaur's brothers coming to her rescue, the bandit, who was waiting below, attempted to open fire, but the girl pluckily snatched the gun away.

Surprised, the bandit was easily captured by her brothers, with her assistance. Meantime, the other bandits opened fire from the house-top and injured Marnam. But instead of running away into the house, she hid herself behind a wooden plank and waited till one of them came down, when she surprised him, throwing herself on him, strangled him with the gold necklace he was wearing. Other members of the family, who had come out by this time, came to her rescue and all the bandits, except one, were captured.

Marnam's father was fatally wounded in the encounter and she herself was removed to hospital for treatment of her injuries.

"Finlandia" Is Chosen By Kolar

Victor Kolar, conducting the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, will feature the magnificent tone poem, "Finlandia," in his program, during the concert to be broadcast from the Ford Symphony Gardens at a Concert of Progress over the Columbia network Thursday, August 22, from 12 to 1 p.m. P.S.T. This work is intensely representative of the contemporary composer's style, which, though not employing direct folk-song material, uses upon a national basis, developed with extreme vigor and assurance of artistic conception and grasp of harmonic, rhythmic and orchestral effects.

Kolar will also present three movements from one of Brama's Serenades and the ballet suite, "Sylvia, by Delibes." The concert will open with the romantic and vigorous dramatic overture, "Hussitka," by Antonin Dvorak.

KOVI and KSL are among the stations which will broadcast the concert.

Canadian Press News
Simla, India, Aug. 22.—A brave Indian, Marnam Kaur, was given recognition for her gallantry recently by the Governor of the Punjab because of her capture of two bandits who had stolen a gift of land and a cash prize of $500, granted by the government in recognition of her bravery against bandits.

Women of the city gave her a golden chain.

SOLD WIFE ON INSTALLMENTS

Associated Press
Jersey City, N.J., Aug. 22.—Installment wife-selling ($200 down the balance in easy payments), such as allegedly figured in the Hoboken bridge-tunnel triangle, yesterday occupied the attention of Judge R. V. Kinkead, as the three sides of the triangle appeared before him to enter pleas.

Richard Root, forty-year-old professional stamp collector and alleged mastermind of the scheme, and Paul Herman, forty-one, of Union City, a stationary engineer, entered indignant "not guilty" pleas when the judge asked them how they pleaded to charges of conspiracy to violate the law.

Assistant Prosecutor F. G. Schlesinger recounted details of the affair, as charged by the state.

Root, the philatelist, lived for his stamps. While so living, his wife, the lovely Hildegard, met Herman, and it was a case of love at first sight. Husband and wife, prospective customers down and talked it over. The deal was agreed to with $700 as the down charge price for one Hildegard Root, installment payments to be accepted.

Root, the bandit, was easily captured by her brothers, with her assistance. Meantime, the other bandits opened fire from the house-top and injured Marnam. But instead of running away into the house, she hid herself behind a wooden plank and waited till one of them came down, when she surprised him, throwing herself on him, strangled him with the gold necklace he was wearing. BRIDGE PROTEST CONSIDERED

Canadian Press
Abbotsford, B.C., Aug. 22.—Premier T. D. Pattullo has promised consideration of the protest presented by Fraser Valley municipalities against any new bridge, toll or otherwise, at New Westminster. Reeve J. T. Brown of Surrey told visitors here yesterday, after his return from an interview with the Premier in Victoria.

He stated he and Reeve Noel Booth of Langley had presented a plan of superstructure for the present bridge, terminating in a toll booth at the level of Columbia Street. An alternate plan to plank the railway section allowing for a double stream of traffic was not approved.

Reeve Booth declared the estimated cost of $1,000,000 in construction to traffic during the change was only slight and urged the necessity for arousing public interest in opposition to the new bridge project.

The two delegates said Mr. Pattullo had promised that the valley interests would be notified once an agreement was entered into with the bridge promoters.

Suspend Teachers In Indian Schools

Associated Press
Washington, Aug. 22.—Seven white women teachers in Indian schools were ordered suspended to-day by U. S. secretary of the interior Harold Ickes. The Indians, he said, were all known to be bad, but persons of age. Knowledge of that appalling mortality inspired doctors and educators to do something to lessen it. What they did is well within the possibility of everyone to know and apply. If they do not, if they want to risk a child's good health because of their own laziness, let them put it into practice. It seems that neither you nor I can do much about it. The information on proper feeding and care is available from innumerable reliable sources for the asking.

The world record brown trout was caught by Mrs. Anna Tiffin on July 2, 1933, at Lake Ontario, British Columbia. It weighed three pounds and three ounces. The world record red and reel catch for women is held by Mrs. Eastham Guild, also known as Carrie Pin. Her champion fish was an 823-pound black marlin, caught in the South Seas. The biggest black marlin ever caught was 598 pounds.

MOTHER MUST SEEK HELP

No one can answer the question about future injury. The human body accommodates itself to all kinds of abuse. But the careless feeding and training of children in the majority successful, there would be no sense at all to our present day insistence upon proper food and regular, intelligent training.

For this pretty dark-eyed young woman is custodian of the chart of world records in fish catching which is kept in the Hall of Fisheries at the American Museum of Natural History in New York. This guardianship is part of Miss La Monte's job as assistant curator of ichthyology at the museum.

(which is the nickname of a popular tropical fish).

Miss La Monte gets and answers inquiries from every conceivable language from English to the dialects used by African or Indian natives. She knows more languages than she can count, and she keeps them all in her head, and she can speak them all.

The clock struck seven. The grocer's boy, bearing chops and vegetables and materials for sago, came in and set out soft and just beginning to brown. Add curry powder, turmeric and coconut milk. When mixture boils add the shredded coconut, tomatoes, salt and sugar. Cover and allow to simmer twenty minutes, or until tomatoes have tendered. Turn off heat. Pour on the tomato sauce and garnish with bananas which have been peeled, cut in halves lengthwise and sautéed in butter.

Of course, you can make this dish without coconut. Simply substitute water for coconut milk and the coconut.

The moments lagged by. Nine o'clock. Half past. Ten. At five minutes past ten when Gypsey almost with worry, paced the floor of the living-room. Tom's key was inserted and the door swung wide.

Gypsey ran to meet him. "Darling, where have you been? I've been so worried."

She stopped. Tom looked so strange. Tom strode past her. His eyes were glassy. He was pale. His heart thumped, his throat thickened. Had he heard the news? Did he know?

She was struck into silence. What an utter fool she had been not to tell him at the start. Nothing more innocent than her afternoon's adventure could be imagined.

But Tom's first words dispelled at least a little of her fears.

"I'm afraid I'm pregnant again," he said.

Apples First To Be Regulated Under Act

Boards to Control Export and Domestic Markets Considered; Lumber Industry Outlined; B.C. Sheep Raisers Want Regulation

Ottawa, Aug. 22.—Apples will be the first natural produce to come under the Marketing Act, it was stated yesterday by officials of the Dominion or central marketing board. The act will take effect ten days ago and a board appointed immediately. Since then study has been given to the requests of apple growers that the marketing of their product be regulated. There will likely be an export board to control the export trade and local boards to take charge of the domestic marketing. Details, however, have not been completed.

A delegation of Montreal lumber dealers have been in Ottawa to ascertain how their industry would be affected by the act. They left last night after seeing the Dominion board. They were given an outline of the steps necessary to develop a scheme to be submitted to the board.

Sheep raisers of British Columbia have also made requests that their industry be regulated, and it is expected the coarse grain farmers of the prairies will take similar action.

GREAT EXPERIMENT

By R. K. CARNEGIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Ottawa, Aug. 22.—Canada is embarking on a great experiment in the realm of business. The power and the backing of the state is to be available to producers to assist them in the more scientific marketing of their natural products. The Dominion Government will have the final say in what specific products will be regulated, but it will be guided in its decision largely by the recently appointed Central Marketing Board.

Breaking new ground the government has not hesitated to adopt unusual methods and may still regard as radical methods. The object is to bring order out of what has often been the haphazard marketing methods of farmers and other producers.

When the marketing bill was first introduced the powers of the government took under advisement the requests of apple growers that the marketing of their product be regulated. There will likely be an export board to control the export trade and local boards to take charge of the domestic marketing. Details, however, have not been completed.

The government was quite ready to break away from former practices in its selection of the board as it had been in framing the provisions of the act itself. Disregarding the claims of organized interests, manufacturing interests and many others, the government thought they should have representation on the board. It has been made up entirely of officials of government departments—highly trained technical men, most of them with distinguished university career in economics.

The board is under the immediate supervision of Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, and it is understood his recommendations were largely accepted by his colleagues as to who should be appointed. The two who are to be appointed to the civil service that men qualified for such important positions, both by training and experience, should be found already in the employ of the government.

While the members of the board have had no actual interest in business, and are technical men first of all, many of them for years have been in close contact with the agriculturists of the Dominion, helping them by advice and research to improve their methods of production and marketing. The appointments were admittedly non-political.

PROVISION FOR LOCAL BOARDS

The new board will function entirely as an investigating body. Groups of producers will decide that they desire to have their products regulated. They will submit their scheme to the Central Board and if it recommends favorably the government will be in a position to grant permission to the producers to organize local boards made up of the producers local board made up of the producers to regulate the marketing of their products. The Central Board itself will have nothing to do with the marketing of the regulated products.

Great obstacles have always stood in the way of organic marketing. Trading within provinces was outside the jurisdiction of the provincial government, whereas interprovincial and external trade is under the authority of the Dominion. In the case of many products therefore, if the marketing must have the authority of both the federal and provincial governments. This two-sided authority has never been available. Now it will be available in those provinces where enabling legislation has been enacted.

Another difficulty has been the absence of control which is claimed. Ninety per cent of a group of producers might want to control the selling of their product, but, it is argued, the remaining 10 per cent might glut the market and defeat all the efforts of the majority. The present act provides for compulsion. A minority has to come in whether it wants to or not.

An example is indicated in the apple marketing in British Columbia. A large majority planned for a steady flow of apples to the various markets, just enough to supply the demand. The minority outside the association, which is to say, the remainder, would ship to this centre one day and to another centre another day, glutting one market after another, to be followed in each case by scarcity. Under the new legislation the minority would have to come in with the majority. The general feeling is that no minority should be forced in if it were 30 per cent or more of the total.

STARS IN PICTURE AT CAPITOL

Cary Grant, Helen Mack and Edward Everett Horton, shown above, have the leading roles in "Kiss and Make-up," which is now showing at the Capitol Theatre.

THE SCREEN

FINE CAST AT CAPITOL

Cary Grant, Genevieve Tobin and Edward Everett Horton in "Kiss and Make-up"

Since time began woman has been asking for an answer to her plea: "I want to be beautiful." And Paramount's "Kiss and Make-up," the romantic tale of the handsome young beauty doctor, to whom women flock for treatment, but remain for love, uses this eternal theme for its story. Stars: Cary Grant, Genevieve Tobin, Helen Mack, Edward Everett Horton. "Kiss and Make-up" is now at the Capitol Theatre.

Mona Maria, Toby Wing, Henry Armetta, Dorothy Christy and the thirteen Wampus Baby Stars of 1934 appear in supporting roles in the film which was directed by Marian Thompson and Jean Negulesco from a play by Stephen Sondheim, playwright.

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE

"Night Flight" M-G-M picture which is now at the Playhouse Theatre, is a picture of the night. It is fitting that in its making there should have been associated plenty of expert fliers.

The author, Antoine de Saint-Exupéry, was an actual pilot on the very air line he writes about. The director, Clarence Brown, is the most experienced flier in film ranks. He is a true aviator, a real pilot and has thousands of hours to his credit. Clark Gable, who plays the vivacious role of Fabian, a pilot lost in a fog, learned to fly in Dallas, Texas. Robert Montgomery, a pilot on the difficult cross-mountain route, is also a pilot. John Barrymore, stern manager of the air line, has been flying as a passenger since 1912. Two electricians of the company are pilots. The head cameraman, Oliver Marsh, was a pilot-photographer during the war.

DOMINION THEATRE

Uncle Sam helped in the production of "Grand Canary," based on a novel by A. J. Cronin. The picture has its setting principally at sea and on land. Captain, one of the Spanish-controlled Canary Islands, and is now at the Dominion Theatre.

The unusual beauty of a particular house and strangely exotic tropical foliage of its surrounding estate were the stimulants that started the dreamy speculation of the author and resulted in the novel.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

A brand new romantic team comes to the screen in the persons of Dick Powell and Ginger Rogers, who appear as screen lovers in "Twelve Million Sweethearts," the first National picture which is at the Columbia Theatre to-day.

No more popular couple could appear together than these two, who are not only admirably suited to each other, temperamentally and physically, but to work in perfect harmony. Both have won their spots as popular screen players as well as singers of exceptional ability.

ROMANO THEATRE

"A Southern Maid" is now being shown at the Romano Theatre. With the glamorous Bebe Daniels in the leading role and shorts actually filmed in Cheddar Gorge and on the rocky coast of Klive, visitors to the Romano Theatre appreciate the glorious South American scenery which forms a picturesque background to "A Southern Maid."

"Krakatoa," the picture never to be forgotten, is the second feature. After many months of waiting and preparations, the eruption of an under-sea volcano was successfully filmed and is explained by Graham McNamee.

EMPIRE THEATRE

Joan Wyndham, the petite blonde in "Loyalties," now showing at the Empire Theatre, confesses to three loves. Her first love was her mother, but just then the Wyndham family moved to California, where Hollywood began to supplant Haydn and Handel in Joan's affections. Just when an offer came from the new-found suitor, the Wyndham returned to London. Instead of making the screen Miss Wyndham took to the stage again.

Now she is back with her second love, playing in "Loyalties."

Museum Visitors Are Increasing

Statistics at the Victoria Museum show that during July visitors to the institution numbered 1,000 more than for the same month of the three preceding years. In July, 1933, there were approximately 8,000 visitors to the museum, while last month there were approximately 11,000, which shows an increase of 25 per cent.

The visitors find that a stroll through the museum is an education. At one time, an important member of the British Museum Association said he regretted the Victoria Museum did not have more visitors. He was told the figures showed the number of visitors had increased.

The Indian collection was remarkable. Numerous people have remarked on the mounted animals and their artificial surroundings as being exceptionally good.

The museum opens to the public from 9 o'clock to 5 o'clock on week days and Saturdays in the summer months, and from 1 to 5 o'clock on Sundays.

WILL DRAFT NEW FARM MEASURES

Associated Press
Washington, Aug. 22.—The United States Agriculture Adjustment Administration went to work to-day to draft legislation to strengthen its farm programs and perhaps put more meat in the budget.

Experts were busy writing new proposals and revising those that failed in the last Congress. Measures the AAA considers vital will be laid before the next Congress. There is expected to be another fight over some of them.

Some of the new measures will be food storage bill aimed at clarifying, revising and extending powers to make loans on farm commodities stored under seal.

HAY SHORTAGE GROWS GRAVE

Reports From Prairie Provinces Indicate Problem is Critical

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Aug. 22—Farmers in five Canadian provinces looked with alarm to-day upon parched and stunted hay fields, depleted feed stores and gradually thinning cattle.

The shortage in the prairie provinces has reached a critical stage, according to semi-official estimates; in the farmlands bordering the Northumberland Strait in Nova Scotia a serious shortage looms imminent and Ontario faces similar difficulties.

A shortage in the United States, which indicated cattle feed might be short into that country from the Dominion duty-free, further complicated matters. It appeared doubtful whether Canada would have enough to take care of its own cattle.

Government officials in Ottawa were reported to be preparing to deal with the emergency by increasing the price of hay and other feed grains. It was considered improbable that emaciated cattle would be slaughtered for relief distribution in order to give healthy animals a better chance.

Semi-official estimates placed the situation in the five provinces as follows:

Saskatchewan.—The province will require 27,000 tons of hay from other provinces in excess of its own distribution to drought areas. There is an estimated surplus of 100,000 cattle needing feed.

Alberta.—Number of heads of cattle was placed at 60,000. Nothing has been done by the government to definitely estimate the cattle surplus but negotiations are going forward with the federal government to arrange relief for the province.

Manitoba.—Twenty thousand head of cattle are in drought areas, 12,000 head having been moved into better land.

Ontario.—An extreme hay shortage in southern Ontario has just been reported by the United Farmers' Co-operative Company. Supplies may have to be imported from other districts.

Nova Scotia.—A serious shortage is reported along Northumberland's seaboard counties. It was expected hay imports from Quebec would be imported from Quebec as was the case in 1917 when farmers paid $20 a ton for Quebec hay.

Berlin, Aug. 22.—Fresh evidence of the advance of paganism under the Nazi regime was provided to-day by the founding of the second pagan group.

The new group, called "The Nordic Faith Movement," is without "hope for the beyond," and holds there is no "need for redemption."

Periodicals of pagan description, it was said, are continually increasing in number and their circulation runs into many thousands.

TORCHY'S AT IT again!

They are having a tough time trying to get opposition for Victoria's torchy's. Bill Peden in pursuit races on the beach at Victoria's sandbank tracks. When he went there for a little exercise and the odd dollar or two or more between six-day events, he was listed for several of those events in which contestants start automatically opposite each other on the sandbank and try to catch the back wheel of their boards. Peden rode them into the boards in that specialty, in which he hasn't been beaten since he entered the pro ranks.

The United States and foreign fields tried hard. They went all out to beat the monarch of the big time bike game. But they admitted themselves beaten and turned to another field to challenge his supremacy—sprint.

For a while they were successful. Torchy wasn't familiar with all the wrinkles of short sputting.

But that wasn't long. And now, in a myriad of other titles he could claim if his memory served, he has added the twenty-five mile sprint championship of America.

Reporting on the event, which was held August 15, The Newark Evening News carries a story which reads in part as follows:

Toronto, king of the six-day race, and Peden, king of the most powerful cyclists in the north, the crown and sashion has a bike rider who is a more popular victory than the red-headed Canadian. Peden rode the full route without dismounting.

"For two laps Peden tried his mightiest to go around World War study German, and neck and neck they raced, but not until the closing inches of the race did Peden suggest in poking his wheel ahead of Wissel's to win by a narrow margin.

The ride was made harder for Peden when Wissel, a bit wobbly from his hard racing of the last few days, failed to hold the black line and forced Peden to ride high. For not holding the pole Wissel was disqualified from the second place and Norman Hill gained runner-up position.

Wissel went to the head of the procession and one-half miles from home and there remained there until near the tape.

"At two to go Peden, who had been riding hard, started to move, but Wissel, who had him and held him right on his hip, Grim and Walker were behind Peden. The red-head fought Wissel every inch of the way but simply couldn't propel his bike fast enough to pass the German, and when again home Wissel rode his high. Peden soon appeared cooked. But Torchy wouldn't quit and finally nipped his rival at the tape."

The time was just over thirty seconds from the record. Peden completed the distance in fifty minutes, two and three-fifths seconds.

The Newark Lodge was also warm in its presentation of Torchy's victory behind "Baby Rose" Marie's lucky charm that goes round and round with the torch when he's riding hard.

When he compiled 101 not out against Toronto's recruits Harry Gibbons, track batsman, and the Westchester county side, became the first batsman this season to reach the 2,000 run mark. Last season he scored 2,008 runs.

Sporting events in connection with the Victorian centenary celebrations in October will include a 1,000-mile bicycle race around the Australian state of Victoria. It will be championship event for a gold cup and $10,000 in prizes.

With a programme of fox-hunting and other sports John Peel, famous hunting character, will be commended in the Lake district in October.

August, the month of Scottish national games, saw an extraordinary influx of visitors to the Highlands.

An open-air swimming bath, costing $12,000, is being constructed at Cheltenham, one of England's inland watering places, popular alike for spa treatment and holiday resort amenities. The bath, which will accommodate 1,000 bathers at a time, will include the latest sun-bathing facilities and provisions for water polo and other water sports.

The Red Nose Race, run in Scotland last month, drew back many contestants. The winner received a pair of red noses and a money prize. At one time the result was always dispatched to London by mounted courier.

The London Ladies' Motor Club is organizing the first women's motor-cycling race, open to women from all parts of the country, to take place late in the summer.

The Arsenal Football Club last season made a profit of $100,000, the highest net return of any club in the league.

Strong Batters And Bowlers On Touring Eleven

Visit, Which Will Bring Team Here Early in September, May Pave Way For Bigger Features

HOPE TO FORM DOMINION BODY

Canadian Press

Toronto, Aug. 23.—Agreement regarding formation of a Dominion cricket body and an early visit of a representative Canadian eleven to the West Indies are developments hoped for as the result of the eastern Canada cricket team's approaching tour in the Canadian west. Leaving Toronto next Monday the team will play in various western cities, from Winnipeg to Victoria, between that date and September 12.

Canadian cricket authorities express great satisfaction in the progress of the game in the Dominion, and feel it is only a matter of a few years before Canada will regularly stage international matches.

Their point to the success of the junior movement; the fine Canadian born cricketers against the greatest improvement in the class.

It is realized the Dominion organization is the logical move towards recognition of Canada as a first-class cricketing country by the M.C.C., the world's cricket governing body.

ASTORIA STRONG
The feelings of confidence prevails among critics concerning the success of the eastern team in the approaching clashes in the west. On paper the eleven's batting order gives some reason for this confidence. Six members of the team have league averages of more than fifty this season, and have scores nearly matched between them. The remaining players also do well, averaging in the neighborhood of thirty.

The bowling strength of the side has in its great variety, practically every type being included from fast to slow spin, being unequalled. A brief word has also been stressed in the selecting of the players, the batmen being also "bowlers" and vice versa.

One of the main requisites in the choice of the team is the finding of officials free from the pickings of youth on either side—not one player is more than thirty—the selectors have not only kept this in mind, but also that the young players will be better able to stand long travelling and continuous play.

One of the main requisites in the choice of the team is the finding of officials free from the pickings of youth on either side—not one player is more than thirty—the selectors have not only kept this in mind, but also that the young players will be better able to stand long travelling and continuous play.

The bowlers of the side are in great variety, practically every type being included from fast to slow spin, being unequalled. A brief word has also been stressed in the selecting of the players, the batmen being also "bowlers" and vice versa.

Tigers Best Draw On Big Win Streak

Pack in Largest Crowds As They Continue Meteoric Course; Schoolboy Rowe Pitches Fifteenth Consecutive Win

By HUGH S. FULLERTON Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer
New England's leading club in the American League apparently can look upon Detroit Tigers not only as the prospective representatives of their circuit in the world series but as bringers of financial prosperity as well.

The dashing progress of the Tigers to the top of the standing and the excellent record of two-and-a-half years of Lyons' New York pitching team has made Detroit the best of attractions in its final swing around the east. First they drew over 100,000 fans in their five-game series at New York; then a record throng of nearly 50,000 last Sunday. And the final game attracted the largest mid-season crowd of the Red Sox season, 15,250, to see them win the series final 8 to 6, and Rowe score his fifteenth consecutive mound triumph yesterday.

The lanky "Schoolboy" was less than he was against the Yanks as he won his nineteenth triumph of the year and approached the American League consecutive victory record of sixteen, held jointly by Walter Johnson, Jim Wood and Lefty Grove. He allowed nine hits.

SHOOTS HIT YANKEES

The triumph increased the Tigers' lead to five and one-half games on the last day of play, their visit to the Yankee stadium with an 8 to 6 victory, their first of the year on the New York field. Lou Gehrig provided most of the opposition for the Browns, clouting his thirty-ninth home run with home runs to take the lead from Jimmie Foxx, knocking in five runs with them. But a heavy attack on Ruth Van Etten and Danny MacPherson in the early innings was too much for him.

The third-place Cleveland Indians improved their position by putting up a nine-run eighth, the ninth at the expense of the Athletics, winning the third American League game, 12 to 11.

Chicago and Washington were idle.

CARDS VICTORS

Third-place Cardinals registered the only important National League gain when they started out with three tallies in the third and decisively behind the Yanks. Behind Tex Clevenger, who hurled a four-hitter, they won both the Giants and the Cubs suffered unexpected setbacks.

The league leaders called upon Fred Fitzsimmons, who had only two days rest after Saturday's two-hit shutout of the Cards, and Cincinnati sent him out in the fifth, winning four of his six blows, though an error for enough runs to win 4 to 3.

The Phils ended a seven-game losing streak with a 6 to 1 triumph over the Cubs when Fidgety Phil Colletting hit a six-inning winning job.

The Diamondbacks, though improving over the Pirates by eliminating Larry French and Hal Smith for nine runs in six innings and winning the series final 9 to 5, it was their twelfth victory in eighteen games against Pittsburgh.

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE

If Newark Bears and Rochester Red Wings could have effected some sort of agreement last spring whereby they could carry on the International League race without meeting each other, there might be an entirely different story to the pennant chase now.

The rival clubs wound up their season's work yesterday with Rochester, turning in a 9 to 5 victory behind Pete Apstein's five-hit flinging. That left Rochester only three games behind the leaders but did not help much so far as the season's encounters were concerned. The bears finished with 14 to 12 edge there. And just to make a little better for the Wings, their record against the other six clubs in the circuit so far is just three games better than Newark's instead of three games worse.

CY BLANTON AIRBET

Cy Blanton's air-tight pitching enabled Albany to strengthen its hold on fourth place in the hot race for the pennant berth. The Pittsburgh Pirates' semiannual limited Buff-Bisons to two hits and fanned thirteen.

Montreal pulled up to a fifth place with Buffalo by pounding Baltimore into decisive defeat, 13 to 7.

Toronto and Syracuse split two games. The Jays won the opener, 2 to 0, behind Al Hollingsworth's four-hit pitching, but dropped the second, 9 to 5.

A CHAMP STOOPS TO CONQUER

Helen Jacobs put every muscle into the defense of her Women's United States tennis championship title in the tournament at Forest Hills, L.I. The camera caught her as she was rushing out for a low return into the forecourt. Only two of the sixty-four contestants wore skirts, shorts being the accepted mode for the courts. Her victory gave her the United States crown for the third successive year.

OTHER QUARTER-FINALISTS

Sweeping into the quarter-finals

With the heat hanging heavy over the courts during the whole afternoon play, junior tennis players of Victoria and district battled their ways to the championship finals at the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club yesterday evening.

The players were not greatly bothered by the heat, a fact largely due to their sensible attire, for practically all of them and most of the boys were wearing shorts and thin blouses and shirts.

The only defending champion today is Mary Gray, William Head, who is playing Kewpie Unsworth, leading junior of the home club, in the under-eighteen girls' final.

Gray, who has been winning only five games in two matches yesterday on her way to the last round, will meet Unsworth in the final.

Miss Unsworth defeated Miss Lily Deane after a lengthy battle.

Mr.
And
Mrs.Bread of Dependency
Is a Bitter
DietDorothy DixThe Mind Should Be a
Storehouse

WHAT are you storing up for your old age?

Money, of course. The dullest and the most thoughtless realize the necessity of providing against the time when they will be old and feeble and no longer able to work. For in all the world there are no people so pitiable and forlorn as those who are forced to eat the bitter bread of dependence in their old age, and who find how steep are the stairs of another man's house!

In youth, money is a convenience and an aid to pleasure. In age it is an absolute necessity. For when we are old we have to buy even consideration and politeness from those about us. This is true even in the households of our own children, for between the father and mother who are able to pay their own way and are the source of a never-ending flow of gifts and treats and the father and mother who must be supported is a great gulf fixed.

It is the difference between having the place of honor or the back seat. Between being listened to with respect and having one's opinions derided. Between having one's little peculiarities catered to as interesting characteristics and being snubbed for one's old-fashioned ways.

Nor is this as unfeeling and hard-boiled as it seems. The average young couple have all they can do in these times of the high cost of living to provide for their own wives and children and it adds a crushing burden to put upon them the extra weight of the support of the old people of their families.

The fate of the dependent old is so pathetic that it is a marvel that it does not frighten everyone trying to provide against it. Yet it was recently stated in a journal of statistics that 90 per cent of the men and women over fifty years of age were dependent either upon their children or upon public charity.

Don't let this misfortune befall you. Guard against it. Begin systematic saving while you are young so that when you are old you will at least have the comfort of being independent.

But there are other things just as important as money to lay by for your old age. One of these is love. Are you providing against the days when you will be too old to go out and amuse yourself, when your charm will have gone and you will no longer be able to make friends, and when you will be dependent for your happiness upon the love you have stored in the hearts of others?

Most of us have a curious and naive belief in what we call natural "affection." We befool ourselves into thinking that people must love us because they stand in a certain relationship to us and because there are blood ties between us. Never was there a more fallacious theory.

There is, to be sure, the mother passion for the child she has borne, and the instinctive clinging of the child to its mother while it is young and helpless, but that is all. It doesn't follow as a matter of course that grown-up men and women love their parents just because they are their parents.

As a matter of fact, they don't, unless the father and mother have won their love by years of tenderness and understanding and sympathy. You can't be hard and tyrannical and selfish and stingy with your children and expect them to love you because it is their duty to do so.

If you want your children to love you when you are old, you have to begin winning their hearts when they are in the cradle.

Have you laid up a good supply of friendship for your old age?

No complaint is heard more often from the old than that they are lonely. Few come to see them. They are seldom asked out. No one sends them flowers when they are sick. They are neglected and they crave the little attentions that we all like and yearn for the society of their fellow creatures.

Now, when old people are lonely, it is always their own fault. It is because they have neglected to lay up any friendships for the care and helplessness of old days when they have no longer the power to attract people to them.

They have gone their selfish way through life, sufficient unto themselves in their youth. They have never held out a helping hand to those in need. They have never wept with those who wept and rejoiced with those who rejoiced. They have not bothered to write notes of condolence or congratulation. They have never visited the sick and afflicted. They have never spent an hour listening to an old person's garrulous talk, and so when they get old they are repaid in the same coin.

Are you laying up any mental riches for your old age?

I know an old lady so feeble that she cannot stir from her chair and whose eyes have failed so that she cannot tell day from night and who is so deaf that she cannot be read to, but who passes her days delightfully reciting to herself whole cantos of Scott and Byron and recalling word for word chapters of Dickens and Thackeray and Miss Austin. Her mind to her kingdom is, in which she finds entertainment and amusement.

Will you be amused or bored when you are in your nineties, and have nothing but your own society?

I know another woman, middle-aged, who is deliberately laying up a treasure of memories of travel to solace her in her old age. She will never know a dull moment, for she will have something to think about besides her rheumatism and her diet when she sits alone in the twilight of life.

Old age comes to us all. Don't let it find you empty-handed or empty-minded. Thus shall you make it a time of happiness instead of torment.

GumpsUncle Wiggily's Little Scouts

By HOWARD R. GARIS

One day Buster and Custer, two little rabbits, who had helped Uncle Wiggily cut the grass by pretending to make grass grow where there was none, began by making a tent. We didn't bring one with us but we can make one.

"Will you please take us camping, Daddy?" asked Buster.

"Like the Boy Scouts?" asked Custer.

"Like Uncle Wiggily," said Custer.

"But what about something to eat?" asked Custer.

"You have to eat in camp, Custer," said Uncle Wiggily.

"I shall take you camping and you can eat in camp," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Come on, we'll start now."

BABBIT BOYS LOOKED

The rabbit boys looked at each other. They were not prepared to hear their father agree so quickly to what they had asked.

"Do you mean you will come camping with me right now?" asked Wiggily.

"Of course," said Uncle Wiggily.

"But what about something to eat?" asked Custer.

"You have to eat in camp, Custer," said Uncle Wiggily.

"And what about a tent?" asked Buster.

"Like Uncle Wiggily," said Custer.

"But what about something to eat?" asked Custer.

"You mean we can make a sort of frame work of the drift wood sticks?" asked Custer.

"And cover it with dried seaweed to make a tent?" asked Custer.

"That's what I meant," said Custer.

"There certainly isn't any cloth or canvas around here," said Uncle Wiggily.

"I see something, or, rather, two things out of which we can make a fine tent," said Uncle Wiggily.

"What are they?" asked Custer.

"Two old hats," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Old hats?" asked Custer.

"Yes, old hats," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Old hats?" asked Custer.
